What is a PAC?

A political action committee (PAC) is an organization that functions as a liaison between elected federal legislators and the electorate.

PACs are formed by corporations, associations and labor unions to gain representation on Capitol Hill by financially supporting candidates.

PACs solicit voluntary contributions from individuals with common interest to advance a political process.

PACs are nonpartisan entities whose primary concern is to elect qualified candidates regardless of party affiliation.

Important Reminder!

Under federal law, union dues cannot be used for partisan political activity.

Donations to the PASS PAC are strictly voluntary.
